

Challenging Hurdles Lie Ahead For the Intercounty Connector

by Thomas X. White

The public comment period on the Draft Environmental Impact Statement (DEIS) for the proposed Intercounty Connector (ICC) was officially over February 25. The Maryland State Highway Administration (SHA) and the Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) now have some hard work ahead of them if they expect to maintain the accelerated schedule for review of public and agency comments, submit a decision on a chosen build alternative by June, 2005, line up all of the elements of an approved funding strategy in the current session of the Maryland General Assembly and break ground (as Governor Ehrlich hopes) in the fall of 2006.

Since the comment period on the DEIS closed, several events have taken the focus on the controversial highway to a new playing level. The ultimate selection of the actual route of the highway and how it is to be funded are being challenged. Those challenges may represent significant hurdles for the Ehrlich administration to overcome in order to get to actual construction.

Based on approximate information from SHA, over 3,000 public comments were submitted on the DEIS by the closing date. These included five hundred comment cards; 350 emails; 1,400 comments submitted to the website and about 1,000 letters. These numbers do not include comments by other government agencies and are in addition to public comments provided in testimony at the four January public hearings. All comments will become part of the final EIS and SHA has indicated that those individuals noting a particular issue regarding the ICC proposal will receive a response from the agency and that all issues raised in comments will be covered in the EIS.

EPA Comments

In another development, Donald S. Welsh, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) Region Three administrator, released that agency's comments on the DEIS. Noting that the current DEIS is part of the third process for the ICC (previous DEISs were submitted in 1983 and in 1997), EPA commented "... EPA has maintained concern about the project, particularly the 'Master Plan' alignment (Corridor 1 in the current study), ... which crosses Montgomery County's highly valued stream valley park system. The first study did not adequately identify alternatives to the preferred alignment (then labeled Alternative G in 1983). The 1997 study, which analysed five alternatives, was halted in 1999 by (then) Maryland Governor Glendening, due to detrimental environmental impacts." Under EPA's system for rating EISs they maintained the concern over Corridor 1 by rating it as Environmental Objections. "This rating is due to the direct, indirect and cumulative impacts of this highway alignment on water quality, stream habitat (particularly the reproducing trout stream in the Paint Branch watershed), high quality wetland resources, terrestrial resources of the parkland and impacts to residential communities."

Regarding Corridor 2 (the northern alignment), EPA noted that it avoids the preserved resources and habitats of the majority of parkland but has significant remaining environmental and community impacts. However, EPA feels that it is more likely that the function of Corridor 2 resources can be replaced and possibly improved, when compared to the protected parkland of Corridor 1. Because of the very strong public concern regarding protection of the very large drinking water supply reservoir, located approximately one mile from the proposed Corridor 2 alignment, EPA is requesting that additional risk evaluation and risk minimization measures be incorporated into the analysis of this alignment. Thus, for Corridor 2, the EPA finds that, "Because of the unavoidable direct, secondary and cumulative impacts to streams, wetlands, floodplains, forests and community and historic resources, the environmental impacts associated with Corridor 2 are rated as Environmental Concerns.

No Build

While recognizing that the No Build alternative will not satisfy the purpose and need of the study, in its technical comments, EPA noted that, "avoidance of environmental impacts of a roadway can only be achieved with a no build; therefore the (No Build) alternate is given a Lack of Objections rating." Further, recognizing the great volume of public testimony supporting and opposing the highway, the comments stated, "There is substance to the argument that neither build alternative will significantly relieve traffic on local roads, the expected time savings (especially for shorter trips) is low and the projected cost of building the highway is high. There is substance to the argument that induced travel is a result of new highways. Real improvement in traffic congestion

Council Visits Pre-election Voting Methodologies

by Diane Oberg

The nature of future city and state elections could be affected by two items from the Greenbelt City Council's agenda at the February 28 regular meeting. The first, a report from the city's Board of Elections, recommended that the city implement a vote-by-mail process for city elections and increase the visibility of city elections as well by easing limits on electioneering and political signage. Later in the meeting, council voted to support state legislation requiring use of voting systems that produce a "voter-verified paper audit trail."

City Elections

In response to a January 10 referral from a previous council meeting, the elections board considered whether to recommend an early voting pilot program or a process of voting by mail for city elections to increase voter turnout. Council accepted the board's report to be discussed at the March 14 regular council meeting.

The board commended council's desire to make voting easier and increase turnout but concluded that early voting raises too many problems (such as ballot security, cost and availability of election personnel and polling places) to be used this year. They also concluded that the city should continue to have identical election procedures at each polling place, rejecting the idea of a single precinct pilot.

Members also concluded that significant changes to the city charter and code were likely to be required for any significant changes to the election process.

The board was more receptive to the idea of voting by mail, which they likened to an "add on" to the existing absentee voting procedure. The one concern of the board with this proposal was whether it would continue to be feasible to count ballots manually or if the city would have to contract for optical scanning equipment. While security issues have been raised with regard to voting by mail, the board noted that Oregon now votes exclusively by mail.

Some of the city's election-turnout problems, the board felt, may have been created by earlier city reforms. In 1991 council banned electioneering within 300 feet of polling places during municipal elections. In recent elections the candidates

Spring Completion Expected In Hanover Parkway Changes

by Diane Oberg

Flowers won't be the only things popping up on streets in Greenbelt East this spring. New traffic calming devices will also be planted in the coming few months following council's approval of a final plan at its February 28 regular meeting.

A few features have been pruned since the plan's last presentation to council in September: Hanover Parkway will not lose a traffic lane near Roosevelt High School, a roundabout will not be installed on Megan Lane and speed humps will not be installed on Hanover Parkway unless other measures in the plan do not sufficiently slow traffic. Director of Planning and Community Development Celia Craze said that construction will start in late spring and should be complete by July 1.

The plan has also been modified since September to provide for a continuous sidewalk on the west side of Hanover Parkway between the Schrom Hills and Hunting Ridge roundabouts and to show a sidewalk link between the Schrom Hills roundabout and Greenspring II.

One change requested has not been incorporated. Fred Gasper had asked for dedicated bicycle lanes in the roundabouts. However, Craze said that the national standard for roundabouts recommends that bike lanes be discontinued prior to roundabouts as the added width reduces the roundabouts' effectiveness in reducing motorists' speeds. (It is doubtful, however, that many bicyclists would follow the Pedestrian and Bicycle Information Center's recommendation that they dismount and walk their bikes through the roundabout.)

Craze and her staff also examined the suggestion that an off-road bike lane be constructed in this area but found that such a lane would create bicycle-pedestrian conflicts, putting pedestrians at risk. Thus, the plan was left unchanged. Bicyclists will need to merge with vehicular traffic at the roundabouts. The proposed roundabout on Megan Lane was deleted from the plan in response to opposition from the Greenspring Homeowners Association.

Advice

Police, fire and county public works officials were consulted regarding the proposed speed humps on Hanover Parkway. The police had no objections. The county Department of Public Works and Transportation advised that they will not install

Metropark Reconsideration Goes before Planning Board

The request for reconsideration by Greenbelt Metropark, LLC, Greenbelt Station developers, of the approval of the conceptual site plan and preliminary plan of subdivision will come before the Prince George's Planning Board at its March 17 meeting.

After holding an interactive design review public meeting about its plans at the Greenbelt Community Center Wednesday night, the next step is the formal request to the Planning Board to rectify the error that caused the courts to reverse the approvals.

At the March 17 Planning Board meeting, scheduled for 9 a.m., the board is expected to decide either to reconsider the approvals or not do so – possibly by a simple motion, or lack thereof, with little debate. If the board votes to reconsider, then it will schedule the matter on a future agenda to consider the merits of the reconsideration proposed by the developer. If it does not reconsider, then the developers will have to begin again with the Planning Board by submitting a conceptual site plan for the full plan-review process.

THANKS

Thank you for the article, “Greenbelt Skater Enjoyed Long Island Performance,” in the February 24 issue about Alice Murphy and the announcement about our local competition. It was really a nice boost to the team to have the publicity and there was standing room only when the team performed “Okla-homa!” We came in first again!

We will represent our rink next at Richmond in April at the District skating competition compet-ing against teams from the entire mid-Atlantic region.

Thanks again to the News Re-view staff for your ongoing hard work.

New Group Learns How to Listen

by Neil McFarb

The Greenbelt Dialogue Group held its first meeting on February 21 at the Community Center. The meeting, called “Presidents Day Dialogue for Non-Presidents,” was designed to introduce the dialogue method developed by David Bohm. In this process participants sit in a circle and “explore” a topic, no goal is required and the objec-tive is not to convince others of one’s point of view, but to listen to others and learn about one’s own biases.

The topic for this meeting was “I’m not the President, how can I achieve peace in the world?” Much of the meeting was spent dialoging about dia-logue itself, understanding the guidelines, talking about how important it is to have a positive method of communication, espe-cially in the currently divisive political climate. Gradually the topic of peace wove itself into the conversation. Ideally each person completes their thought without interruption, others ex-press their feelings to the group and keep away from individual attacks.

To get information more about upcoming dialogues, email mcfarb@britsys.net or call 301-345-6314.

“Night of the Iguana” Opens At GAC March 18

by Eli Flam

A new production of Tennes-see Williams’ “The Night of the Iguana” opens at Greenbelt Arts Center (GAC) March 18, for a run of four weekends through April 9. Director Randy Barth promises surprises.

The play is set in a rustic, seaside Mexican hotel on a jungle-covered hilltop in 1940. Widowed proprietor Maxine Faulk (Cathy Barth) welcomes an old acquaintance, T. Lawrence Shannon (Andrew Schneider), a deeply troubled former Episcopal minister. He is guiding a busload of female Baptist teach-ers from Texas. Their leader (Malca Giblin) is incensed be-cause Shannon and the youngest in the group (Jobie Watson) have been intimate. Mix in an enig-matic artist (Cassie Lee) shepherding her aged grandfather, a famous poet (Philip Brandis); then, to up the dramatic ante, add a baleful creature: a cap-tured iguana that two young ho-tel workers tie to the verandah. As cross-currents collide, the question obruades: Who’s on the end of which rope?

Since the play’s debut on Broadway in 1961 the namesake lizard has been represented mostly by variously stuffed sacks (it was seen live in the film ver-sion). Randy Barth heard of a production where an actor played an iguana – though this appar-ently is not in store at GAC.

“Rehearsals have been quite intense,” he told the News Re-view, “particularly since I like to really explore the characters with the actors. We’ve had some very detailed rehearsals where we of-ten work on a few lines at a time to adjust nuance and tim-ing. This is particularly chal-lenging when working in the round (or, in our case, a three-fourths round stage) since you often need audience on three sides to see a reaction.”

In 1999 Barth directed Will-iams’ “A Streetcar Named Desire” at Greenbelt. “We did quite well,” he said, “both in numbers and appreciation.”

Long active as director and actor at Goddard Space Flight

Center’s amateur theater, Barth works there daytimes as a sec-tion manager for software engi-neers. (He earned a Ph.D. in computer science at the Univer-sity of Maryland.)

For “Iguana,” Barth and pro-ducer Gene Duarte are backed by a numerous crew for everything from program and props to lights, sound and set construc-tion. On hand have been Mary Collins, Carolyn Cornelius, Doc Elza, Den Giblin, Malca Giblin (who doubles with work on cos-tumes), Meg Larko, Kendra Simmons, Frank Sledge, Bob Th-ompson, Chris Wells, Lou Yakstis, Steve Yednock (who doubles in a lesser role on stage) and Tom Zanner. Spanish coach Beatriz Mayoral scouted out the first of two Mexican workers, played by Samuel Encarnacion; he’s joined by Brian Moors, while David Solomon plays the bus driver for the Baptist teachers.

The original production drew many revisions by Williams. He was at a low point in his profes-sional life and felt strongly his reputation was at stake with “Iguana.” It got a mixed recep-tion on the road but then carried the day – and night – in New York. Top critic Walter Kerr, in an essay full of praise, found that the play “reminds us what it is to watch poetry in the process of finding itself.”

“The Night of the Iguana” will be performed at GAC Fridays and Saturdays March 18 through April 9 at 8 p.m., plus on two Sundays, March 27 at 2 p.m. and April 3 at 5 p.m. Call 301-441-8770 to reserve tickets.

Town Hall Meeting On Social Security

Congressman Steny Hoyer will hold a town hall meeting on Social Security on Monday, March 14. The meeting will be held from 2 to 3 p.m. at the School of Public Policy, Van Munching Hall, University of Maryland, College Park. People are invited to come and share their concerns with Hoyer.

Fitzgerald Presents Lecture On Livable Modern Furniture

by Katie Scott-Childress

On March 15 at 7:30 p.m., the Greenbelt Museum will host the lecture, “Livable Modern: Furniture Design from the 1900s to the 1950s,” in the Greenbelt Community Center, Room 201. Dr. Oscar Fitzgerald will present a slide lecture that chronicles furniture design from the first half of the 20th century. He will discuss the early influences of European modernism on Ameri-can designers and how these ideas were adapted in the United States by designers and manufac-turers.

The federal government de-signed and manufactured modern style furniture for Greenbelt’s original residents to furnish their modern style homes. The talk will show the furniture created for Greenbelt’s homes in its his-torical context examining the influences of various styles on the government’s designers.

Fitzgerald is an active histo-rian, author, lecturer and consult-ant on American and European decorative arts and architecture. His book, “Three Centuries of American Furniture,” first pub-lished in 1982, went though four printings. A revised and ex-panded edition, “Four Centuries of American Furniture,” was pub-lished in 1995. Recently he was awarded a James Renwick Fel-lowship for research on a new book about contemporary studio furniture.

The Greenbelt Museum spon-sors a bi-monthly lecture series that is free to the public. The lectures explore aspects of the history of the Great Depression and World War II era.

In the Money

“Million Dollar Baby” opens Friday, March 11 at Old Greenbelt Theatre. Its three leading figures – Hilary Swank, Clint Eastwood (actor/director) and Morgan Freeman – won Oscars in Hollywood last month. Swank plays the pivotal role, a young athlete down on her luck who wants to be a cham-pion boxer. Old pros Eastwood – on the outs with his own daughter – and Freeman overcome doubts to get deeply in-volved, in the ring and out. The story carries a strong punch and ducks the kinds of cliches that mar many a film about fisti-cuffs, e.g. “Rocky” (plus its sequels) and even “Golden Boy” of yore. This one keeps its momentum into the movie’s final rounds. The PG13 rating tracks to violence and tough situa-tions.

Social Action Issues
At Mishkan Torah

The Social Action Committee of Mishkan Torah has scheduled a number of lectures for this year.

"Clean Energy" will be the subject of a presentation on Sunday, March 13 at 11 a.m. The program will discuss the sources of electrical energy available to the residents of Greenbelt and Maryland. Each source has its own environmental impact and consumers have the ability to choose the source of the power consumed in their homes and businesses.

On Friday, March 18 as part of the evening services which begin at 8 p.m., Dale Citron from the Crohn's and Colitis Foundation will discuss recent research of these diseases and their incidences within the Jewish community.

These free lectures are held at Mishkan Torah and are open to the public.

Empty Bowls Event
At Comm. Church

Greenbelt Pottery will present its first annual Empty Bowls project on Saturday, March 12 from 4 to 7 p.m. at Greenbelt Community Church.

History

In 1990 a high school art teacher in Michigan helped his students solve a problem. They were searching for a way to raise funds to support a food drive. What evolved was a class project to make ceramic bowls for a fund raising meal. Guests were served a simple meal of soup and bread and were invited to keep the bowl as a reminder of hunger in the world. Other information about Empty Bowls may be found at <http://www.emptybowls.net>.

When Greenbelt Pottery found no such group in the area, they decided it was time to organize one for this neighborhood. In conjunction with Greenbelt's Recreation Department arts program and Greenbelt Community Church they planned the first local Empty Bowls Project to be held this Saturday.

Beneficiary

There is a fee, which includes participant's selection of a bowl from a variety of original bowls handcrafted by potters at the Greenbelt Community Center and a simple meal of soup and bread prepared by members of Greenbelt Community Church. Those who attend can take pleasure in knowing all proceeds will benefit the nonprofit Help-by-Phone food project.

Help-by-Phone has served Prince George's County for over 34 years, providing emergency food services throughout the county.

A very limited number of tickets may be purchased at the door the evening of the event. For more information contact Jan Derry at 301-474-8389 or janmderry@yahoo.com.

School Boundaries Meeting Scheduled

The Prince George’s County Public School system has scheduled a series of public discussion meetings to gain parental feedback on realigning school boundaries to better utilize school system resources. Letters are being mailed to every parent/guardian who has an affected pupil. Each school affected will send home flyers reminding parents to attend the meetings in their specific geographic areas. The meeting for region 2 (which includes Greenbelt) is being held on March 16 at 7 p.m. at DuVal High School.

Dr. Andre Hornsby, chief executive officer for the school system, commented that, “the public’s input, particularly from parents with children in the system, continues to be of paramount importance as we work together to craft mutually agreeable changes to address school boundary challenges.” Those who wish to speak must register in advance by calling the region 2 office of Dr. Bruce Katz at 240-684-6235.

Recommendations for school boundary changes are based upon the following criteria:

1) Adhering to contiguous boundaries and eliminating cross-busing where feasible; 2) correcting imbalances due to Contextual Learning Environment (formerly Magnet) program adjustments; 3) adjusting middle school configuration to grades 6-8; 4) expanding pre-K sites; 5) maintaining safe walking distances; 6) assigning students to the school closest to their homes; 7) enhancing inclusion for special students; 8) maintaining before and after programs; 9) implementing approved construction projects; and 10) opening new schools to limit/reduce overcrowding of facilities. Those needing additional information can also contact Dr. Katz’office.

will require the coordination of the public and private sectors, to promote incentives to reduce commuting time and distance, increase car pool opportunities, develop and use public transit options, improve transportation infrastructure and apply ‘balanced’ land use planning.” For these reasons, EPA advises FHWA and SHA to carefully and thoughtfully evaluate the complexities of the costs and benefits.

The last rating assigned by EPA to the DEIS evaluates the adequacy of the statement, where a rating of 1 is “adequate;” a rating of 2 is “insufficient information” and a rating of 3 is “inadequate.” So for the adequacy of the DEIS and the rating of the document, the EPA rated the ICC study as a 2 (insufficient information). This rating was assigned because additional information is being requested to address issues of minimization and mitigation of environmental impacts of the project.

According to the comments, “The EPA expects more detailed mitigation and environmental stewardship commitments to be available before the SHA announcement of a preferred alternative. A mitigation package developed for the corridors must consider impacts to (and loss of) interior forest habitat in Corridor 1, and to a lesser extent, Corridor 2 The document also needs an explanation for the increase in wetland, forest and stream impacts in comparison to earlier studies There is a need for a risk evaluation of the (Rocky Gorge) reservoir, possibly modeling to estimate direct impacts, road runoff impacts and secondary development impacts (which would apply to either corridor) The EPA requests that the document more clearly describe the storm water management activities proposed for the alignments The agency requests a formalization of a process for review of design decisions (applicable to) culvert and bridge dimensions, wildlife passages, placement and type of storm water facilities, retaining walls and noise barriers and the height of interchanges.”

It is clear that the concerns, objections and requests for additional information raised in the EPA comments will require SHA to undertake a great deal of further analysis in order to choose a “preferred alternative” and to complete work on a final EIS by the scheduled time for a “Record of Decision” submission to the FHWA by June 2005.

Legislation

On another front, the ICC is being discussed in both house and senate legislative committees of the Maryland General Assembly regarding funding sources for the estimated $3 billion cost of the 18-20 mile highway. In the house, the Appropriations Committee held a hearing on House Bill (HB) 1352 on Tuesday, March 8. In the Maryland Senate Budget & Taxation Committee, Senate Bill (SB) 75 will take up the issue, although no hearings have been scheduled as yet. Both bills are administration bills that modify the limitations on the use of Grant Anticipation Revenue Vehicle (GARVEE) bonds issued by the Maryland Department of Transportation (MDOT) and the Maryland Transportation Authority (MdTA). According to the Maryland Department of Legislative Services (DLS) Fiscal Note for the bills, they would increase the maximum percentage from 13 to 20 percent of the state’s average annual federal highway aid authorization that may be used for annual debt service on the GARVEE bonds. In Maryland GARVEE bonds issued by state transportation agencies are not secured by the full faith and credit of the state nor by any other state revenues. GARVEE bonds are currently not counted as part of the state’s capital debt affordability. Under current law, annual payments of principal and interest on GARVEE bonds cannot exceed 13 percent of the state’s annual federal highway aid authorization. In order to finance the ICC, MDOT is proposing to raise this percentage to 20 percent. The current financing plan for the ICC assumes a GARVEE issuance of $1 billion, MdTA toll-backed debt (revenue bonds) of $1.2 billion and a cash contribution of $200 million from the Transportation Trust Fund and federal funds.

The DLS fiscal note also notes that the MdTA has advised that GARVEE bonds are a critical component of the ICC financing plan; without the increase in the 13 percent cap, other sources of funding must be identified for the ICC.

Viability

In an analysis of the FY 2006 Maryland Executive Budget prepared by DLS, the viability of the ICC financing plan is called into question for the following fiscal and policy issues:

A high reliance on debt. $2.2 billion or 92 percent of the project would be funded with debt Potential impacts on MdTA toll revenues. Should toll revenue from the ICC fall below projections, a proportionately larger share of debt service will be paid from MdTA revenue generated by other toll facilities.

Another issue is the question of whether the legislature would want to commit 20 to 24 percent of its future federal highway aid cash flow to the ICC. Such a commitment of funding would leave less funding for other major capital projects and could exacerbate pressure for state tax and fee revenue increases to address other unmet transportation needs.

MDOT has indicated that funding delays could be expected to add $100 million per year to the total cost of the ICC. Court challenges by opponents of the project may or may not have an impact on the project timeline. Should higher inflation become a factor due to delays or other cost overruns, it is not apparent how additional costs would be funded.

In its analysis, the DLS recommends, “that MDOT demonstrate to the General Assembly that all alternative financing methods, including additional cash, consolidated transportation bonds, TIFIA loans and other measures were considered in developing the current financing plan. Moreover, the agency should demonstrate how the current financing plan is superior to alternative methods that are available. In considering GARVEE bond legislation during the 2005 session, the General Assembly may wish to consider further restricting the amount of federal highway aid that can be used for GARVEE debt service payments to 13 percent of the 87 percent contracting authority.

“This level would more conservatively reflect the actual funding Maryland will receive based upon the annual obligational authority that Congress uses to limit transportation spending.”

At this point it is hard to predict what actions the Maryland General Assembly will take on the two pieces of legislation. They appear to be wrestling with the bills and considering various options. Delegate Anne Healey (District 22) had this to say about the bonds, “some people see the word ‘GARVEE’ and think it means gravy. What GARVEE

History Lecture Examines Club

At the Montpelier Mansion, Muirkirk Road at Route 197 in Laurel, on Wednesday, March 16 at 7:30 p.m., historian Glenn E. Campbell of the Historic Annapolis Foundation will speak on “The Comic Life and Tragic Death of the Homony Club.” While primarily a social club, members of this elite, pre-Revolutionary War club in Annapolis straddled both sides of the political divide. Their mock trials and debates over the breaking of club rules reveal the larger political issues brewing in Maryland. For information on this free lecture, visit the web site at www.pgparke.com.

bonds really do is mortgage our future federal transportation funding.

“Using this source to pay for one project (the ICC) is outrageous. The limits on the use of this source are prudent and should be kept. There are many worthy transportation projects in our area and throughout the state which need funding too.”

The Greenbelt City Council met with District 22 legislators on March 9 and advised the delegation that the city strongly opposes the ICC and the GARVEE Bond legislation.

Fire & Rescue Log

The Fire Department Log is a bi-weekly report of the activities and news from the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad, Inc. (GVFD). The report includes recent incidents, GVFD news and upcoming events, fire safety and other fire department related information.

Incident Report

From February 19 to March 4 the GVFD responded to a total of 73 engine and 75 ambulance calls.

Among those calls GVFD responded to 12 reports of smoke or fire, eight automatic fire alarms, two gas leaks, 34 motor vehicle accidents and 52 medical calls.

Precautions

During a medical emergency the first responders need to gather some important information, such as current medications, past medical history and any known allergies. This information is also conveyed to the hospital staff. To simplify and speed up this process it is useful to have a list on hand containing this information.

Keep an updated list of all medications taken, including dosages. Update this list regularly, removing any medications no longer taken and update dosages as necessary. In addition, note any current or past significant medical conditions. Significant conditions include diseases, long term or life threatening conditions such as stroke, heart or respiratory problems and past surgeries. Include a list of any known allergies, such as medications, latex, foods or insects. Also include the names and phone numbers of primary physicians and emergency contact information.

Keep this list in an easily accessible location and be sure that family and neighbors know where it is kept. In the event an ill person is unable to communicate with the first responders, this list can greatly improve the level of care.

Volunteers Sought

The GVFD is looking for volunteers age 16 and older. Become a firefighter, EMT or work in an administrative role. All training is provided and the time commitment is flexible. To find out more call the station at 301-345-7000, visit the website at www.engine35.com or stop by the station and ask to speak to an officer.

Questions and comments regarding this report or any fire department issues can be directed to public-info@engine35.com or to 301-345-7000.

The Department is offering a reward of up to $500 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of a suspect in any of the unsolved crimes reported in the blotter. Citizens may anonymously report suspected drug activity by calling the Drug Tip Line at 301-507-6522.

Legislature Considers Campaign Funding

There is a bill currently before the Maryland legislature that would publicly fund Maryland campaigns for candidates to the state legislature.

House Bill 1031, introduced by Delegate Jon Cardin in the House of Delegates and as Senate Bill 725 by Greenbelt Senator Paul Pinsky, would permit General Assembly candidates to receive public funding for their primary and general election campaigns. Mirroring the existing public campaign finance systems of Maine and Arizona and modeled on findings of the bipartisan Study Commission on Public Funding of Campaigns in Maryland, hearings for the bill were held last week by the House Ways and Means Committee.

Park Seeks Aid From Groups

Greenbelt Park has service projects available for Scouts and other groups. Cleanup projects are some of many opportunities for groups or companies to help a national park. Greenbelt Park's entrance and the park office are located at 6565 Greenbelt Road. For more information, call Park Ranger Kevin P. Barry at 301-344-3944.

have also agreed to combat “sign pollution” by restricting campaign signs to a limited set of locations where each candidate can post one sign. The board felt these changes “have served to limit residents’ awareness about elections and their access to information.”

Although not a formal recommendation, the board noted that council could consider holding future city elections on a Sunday to increase participation. Another impediment to citizen election awareness was that this newspaper, while a primary source of election advertising and campaign coverage, is not delivered to all residents.

The board recommended that the city try to increase participation in city elections by piloting changes allowing electioneering closer to city polling places and reconsidering the agreement regarding election signs. They also recommended that the city try an expanded mail voting system and that the results of that change be thoroughly evaluated before giving further consideration to early voting.

State Elections

Council unanimously approved a motion to support state legislation, HB107/SB9, requiring that all machines used in state elections use either a document ballot or produce a “voter-verified paper trail.” Such a system would provide some form of printout that voters could examine to confirm that their votes had been accurately recorded.

The city staff, noting that the issue is complicated and that concerns about the voter-verified paper trail process have been raised by groups such as the National Federation of the Blind and the League of Women Voters, recommended that council support careful and thorough evaluation of all alternatives, as it had done last year, rather than supporting this specific approach.

Several citizens were present on a cold and slushy night to urge council to support these two specific bills. (Several other election bills are also under consideration in Annapolis. Greenbelt’s State Senator Paul Pinsky is a co-sponsor of one of these.)

Ruth Kastner of Hedgewood Dr. argued that the other bills do not have any teeth. Machine audits without a paper trail are inadequate, she said. Kastner also charged that the last state election did not accord with state election law as an independent audit was not possible.

Mayor Judith Davis noted that a paper printout does not provide true security either – in the case of intentional misprogramming – as there is no guarantee that what prints out is really what is recorded electronically. Kastner replied that the requirement in the bill to do a two percent audit would provide protection.

Rebecca Wilson of Hyattsville, a member of True Vote Maryland, also argued for support of HB107/SB9. She said that during the last election she served as a chief judge and that one of the machines she was overseeing recorded two more votes than there were voters, probably because of system crashes. While this discrepancy seems small, she argued that two votes per precinct times 18,000 precincts could be significant in a tight election. Where election law requires recounts, use of election machines without a verifiable paper trail could lead to the invalidation of election results, forcing a new election. She argued for adoption of an optical scanning system, where voters mark paper ballots which are electronically scanned by the voter, then deposited in a ballot box, instead of the ATM-style machines used in Maryland last year.

According to Wilson, the bill supported by Pinsky gives the Secretary of Elections the option of considering approaches other than paper audit trails. Wilson argued that the other options are untested. Stephen Jascourt added that the bill Pinsky supports only requires the capability of an audit trail; it lacks the required two percent audit required in HB107/SB9.

Bertram Donn of Woodland Way noted that the developers of some voting machines, as well as election supervisors, have been politically active in support of specific candidates, making an independent, verifiable vote essential. Councilmember Rodney Roberts’ motion that council formally support HB107/SB9 passed on a 4-0 vote with Councilmember Leta Mach absent.

[Editor’s note: While the newspaper’s goal is to deliver to every residence in Greenbelt, security arrangements in some apartment complexes have restricted our ability to deliver to University Square and some Parkway Apartments. Full delivery to Springhill Lake Apartments resumed in February.]

Free Diabetic Foot Screening Offered

Sarbanes Supports Block Grant Funds

Senator Paul S. Sarbanes (D-Md.) has supported an appeal to the leaders of the Senate Budget Committee urging them to reject the Bush Administration’s plan to cut funding for the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program and retain the program within the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). The CDBG program is a flexible source of funds for local communities and state authorities to provide housing rehabilitation, supportive services, economic development and public improvement projects that have helped improve the quality of life in many lower-income communities in the State of Maryland and across the nation.

Under President Bush’s FY 2006 budget proposal, the CDBG and 17 other community and economic development housing programs would be consolidated into one and move from HUD to the Department of Commerce. The proposed budget would also cut the programs from $5.7 billion to $3.7 billion, a cut of about 35 percent. The letter, signed by a bipartisan group of 54 senators, asks the Senate Budget Committee to maintain the federal government’s current commitment to the CDBG, which they consider one of the most effective federal domestic programs to revitalize neighborhoods with proven results.

The Senate Budget Committee was expected to mark up its FY 2006 budget resolution by March 9.

speed humps on “collector roads.” Craze said that while “Hanover Parkway is probably best classified as a collector road . . . along the section from Greenbrook Drive to Good Luck Road, it could more accurately be described as a primary residential road, given the road profile, traffic volumes and posted speed.”

The concern voiced with installing speed humps on Hanover Parkway is that they would slow down emergency vehicles. Craze recommended that the city wait to see the effectiveness of the other traffic calming devices on Hanover Parkway. If, however, these measures do not reduce speeds by the desired amount, four speed humps will be installed near the roundabouts.

The plan also includes new traffic islands, road striping and marking and signage changes. The estimated cost of the improvements is $304,000 (in addition to the $214,028 already spent, mostly for the Hunting Ridge roundabout).

Fire Truck

Chief Brian Rudy, Vice President Jay Remenick and new President Chris Fleshman of the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad gave council a report on their plans to purchase a new fire truck to replace Engine 352. The department has contracted to have a new engine built for a contract price of $391,370.

One cent of the city’s property tax rate is dedicated to an equipment fund for the fire department. Currently this fund has $274,500. Additional money will be added when the new fiscal year begins this July 1. Remenick said that the department expects to obtain the remaining funds needed by selling Engine 352.

Rudy told council that the department hopes in 2007 to purchase its own ambulance, so that all equipment in the fire house would be owned by the department and the city and would not be subject to reassignment by the county.

State Legislation

Council unanimously agreed to support House Bill 4, which would make it more difficult to sell state-owned land. They also voted to support the concept of Senate Bill 735, which would require apartment owners and condominium associations to install special smoke detectors and fire alarms upon request from a hearing-impaired occupant. They did not, however, support the actual bill as written, due to concerns about the extent of rewiring that might be required and the resulting financial impact on condominium associations.

Despite concerns from a majority of council, they also unanimously approved a motion from Councilmember Rodney Roberts to support Montgomery County/Prince George’s County Bill 121, which would prohibit the District Council from approving any text amendments in residential zones that would increase the density allowed by law. Although the city generally opposes zoning by text amendment, which many see as an end-run around the zoning process, several councilmembers were concerned that current county master plans are outdated. Greenbelt’s master plan has not been updated since 1989, according to City Solicitor Robert Manzi, who said that master plans are supposed to be updated every seven years. This can leave text amendments as the only way to approve uses not originally envisioned. The city is currently seeking approval for a text amendment permitting reuse of the Greenbelt Nursing Home property. Roberts’ motion made the city’s support contingent upon an exception that would allow text amendments that have municipal approval.

Boards/Committees

Council accepted the resignation of Sonja Nielsen from the Arts Advisory Board, reappointed Shalom Fisher to the Recycling and Environment Committee and appointed Denna Lambert to the Senior Citizens Advisory Committee.

Summer Youth Jobs Offered by County

County Councilmember Douglas J.J. Peters (D-4th District) has announced availability of applications for the 2005 Summer Youth Employment Program.

To be eligible, applicants must reside in the county, be between ages 14 and 21 years and be in good standing with their school. The deadline for submission of applications is April 15.

Crowd Fills 50-Year-Old Halls of Mishkan Torah

by Mary Moien and Jordan Choper

More than 130 celebrants gathered at Mishkan Torah Synagogue on March 5 to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the completion of the synagogue building. At that time the synagogue was known as the Jewish Community Center of Prince George’s County. The building was a labor of love by the members of the synagogue and many other Greenbelters who helped in the construction. On March 5 many came back from near and far to share in the happy occasion.

Long-time member Pearl Ellerin, formerly of Lakeside, came all the way from Florida. Others, including Jeanette and Harry Zubkoff and Irene and Syd Spector came from nearby locations such as Leisure World. Many, such as Micki and Gil Weidenfeld, still call Greenbelt their home.

A highlight of the evening was a digital slide-show that included a presentation of historic photographs of the building under construction, showing a collection of amateurs working without heavy equipment to build the synagogue walls. The presentation was accompanied by a voice-over by six individuals who were children who helped by either supplying refreshments to the builders or actually laying bricks and blocks.

Not all of the voices were those of members of the congregation. At least one was a Christian resident who got into the ecumenical mode that characterized the erection of the building. Those sharing their memories included Harry Zubkoff, Irene Spector, Richard Rosenzweig, Richard Castaldi, Howard Chasanow and Phyllis Chasanow Richman. Castaldi recalled his father working with other interfaith residents on the building. Richman remembered that her Sweet 16 party was the first event held in the newly-completed building.

A number of proclamations were given to Mishkan Torah. A proclamation from the county council was presented to Synagogue President Tony Kritt and Sisterhood President Judy Morgenstein by County Councilmember Douglas J.J. Peters. The City of Greenbelt proclamation was presented by Mayor Judith Davis and City Councilmember Rodney Roberts. A letter was read from City Councilmember Konrad Herling who could not attend.

The gala, organized by the synagogue sisterhood, included a buffet and dancing to music supplied by Tom Gavin of DJ Delight. The special night was under the overall direction of Paula Volk with assistance by Debbie Brenner, Arlene Gottlieb, Robin Olson, Micki Weidenfeld, Annie Haber, Alice Perlman and Judy Morgenstein. The buffet was catered under the direction of Alice Strasser.

The evening was a fitting way to celebrate the existence of the building and to give thanks to those whose efforts 50 years ago allowed Mishkan Torah to exist today.
